So sorry to read about Jack's death. Although it has been many years since either of us has been in the chicken business, Jim still remembers the times he brought feed to your farm and talking with you and Jack. Jacque Faubus

Jack was a sweet friend and neighbor. He was a such tease. He always had a twinkle in his eye. He was an interesting person with rich stories and also fantastic listening skills. He really cared about what others had to say. He loved working to improve his home and yard. I know that he missed taking care of his yard the past few seasons. He and I loved to talk about home improvements. He always encouraged me when I complained about my long drive through Oklahoma to work each day. He had done the same thing and promised me that I would remember it fondly in retrospect. Jack was a rock, a friend, a sage, and a comfort to all of us in our small neighborhood. I already missed him when he became too sick to get about. I was looking forward to his recovery. There will be a void in my life. My warmest condolences to Mildred, John, and family.
