I'm not sure what to say, I've had this window open and stared at it with watery eyes thinking of a way to express myself about my father. I am thankful to everyone for being there for him. Even though I was not with him in his passing, he is always with me in everything I do. I hope everyone is trying to remember the good times and life of Ken Staley, after all he would be ticked off about all this Crying BS. My father will be missed by me and those who loved him. Love you all, Marc B. Staley

As my father's best friend, and as my best friend's father, I grew up with Ken. I had not seen him in years, but I have wonderful childhood memories of Ken and all of us children. Fourth of July in the Jemez, softball games and romping in his truck, swimming in the river....Ken will be missed by many and has touched all of our lives.

Loved Ken so much even with all of his little quirks. So glad I had the time we spent together and will really miss calling him just to talk or seeing his smile. He was much too young to be gone.

What I remember about Grampa Ken was that he was always thoughtful and an old fart. You might have had to shake him to make him say thank you, but he was nice, thoughtful and loving and the Best old fart in the world. God Bless him.

I want to say so much about dad, I can't seem to find words to justify the love and loss I feel for him, I miss him so much the ache is consuming. Throughout the past decade, it was him and only him I could openly bear my soul to, and only he would truly listen to me, and we would talk, oh how we would talk, he would laugh at me and me at him, we would talk of life, paths, nature, adventures, memories, where we want to go where we thought we'd be. He was my best friend and my biggest pain in the butt. I wish I was able to have spent more time with him. I loved that he wasn't ashamed of crying, or laughing out loud or showing any emotions in-between. I loved his charm, his romantic notions, his whining, his outright complaining, his stubborn pride, his foolishness and downright silliness, the fact that he would go on regardless of what life brought him. I loved that he refused to be anyone else but himself, for anyone else. I wanted so many people to know the man I became to know, and what a wonderful, simply complex man he was. I'm so glad he was a part of my Sons life, and so glad I was able to share that part of my life with him. I am thankful for all the things he taught me, regardless of how I learned the lesson. I am so grateful for the surprises he still had about him, the love that I know he knew these last years, the care and tolerance of him. Thank you for the flowers dad, I miss you very very much, Always, your Jenny

What do you say about this Man that touched everyone he came in contact with. I truly hope I can live up to man he hoped I would become. Everything he did was to prepare me for what this God forsaken S world would throw at us. I Hope all of us can move ahead without his strength and pushing us to better than him but I don't see how maybe someday but now the pain is all I can think of. I miss the only father I've ever known. I only hope he is proud of all of us kids we did pretty good all in all. I love you all and miss everyone so hope to all of us together again. Much love to all I love you Dad
